STRANGE JOBS

Some people work at offices, some in factories. But Jay Henney always wants something more exciting. 'I love animals,' he says. 'I first become fascinated with reptiles when my dad takes me to the zoo as a kid.' Now, as an adult, Henney works directly with his favourite animals, the world's deadliest snakes. 'I need the most dangerous snakes because it's my job to collect their venom, or poison. I sell it to medical companies so they can make anti-venom. No one needs anti-venom for harmless snakes.' Henney is collecting venom while I interview him. He takes the snake by the head with his bare hands and holds them over a glass cup so they can eject the deadly venom. Today's snake, a black desert cobra, is moving slowly while Henney collects the venom, but he is calm. 'Sometimes they do bite,' he says. 'But that's why we have got anti-venom here.'
