Salta is the capital city of Salta Province. Nicknamed "La Linda", Salta is both an important tourist destination, and the starting point for visiting the rest of the province. It is one of Argentina's <sup>(1)</sup> _____ that is bordered by Chile, Bolivia and Paraguay. It was founded in 1852 as San Felipe de Lerma by Hernando de Lerma, Governor of Tucumán.

Salta's economy is based on diversified farming, lumbering, stock raising and mining. The city serves as the <sup>(2)</sup> _____ of the Metropolitan Area.

It also holds different attractions; among them are its colonial houses and cathedral, and the Museo de Arqueología de Alta Montaña de Salta that holds the three frozen Inca mummies found at the Llullaillaco volcano. The city boasts three theatres and a busy calendar of <sup>(3)</sup> _____, shows, <sup>(4)</sup> _____, and other cultural events. There are also very important celebrations like Fiesta del Milagro, which commemorates the aftermath of a severe earthquake in 1692 when religious icons were paraded through the streets and The April Cultural festival, which lasts the entire month and offers a wide variety of activities such as cultural performances, a handcraft exposition, and live orchestral performances. The Tren de las nubes is Salta's biggest attraction. The red-rock formations of the Valles Calchaquíes and the wine-town of Cafayate are the second most visited places in the province. Salta is also a <sup>(5)</sup> _____. Biking, rafting, hiking and other sports are all available in this attractive province.
