Ushuaia is the capital city and port of the Tierra del Fuego province. It is situated on the Beagle Channel and it lies on the main island of the Tierra del Fuego archipelago at the southern tip of South America.

The site was first settled by Wasti H. Stirling, an English missionary, in 1870. In 1884 an Argentinian naval base was established, and in 1893, Ushuaia was declared a city. Wood construction, sheep raising, fishing, and tourism are the city's principal economic activities. It has got a (1) _____.

This city is one of Argentina's top destinations, and for a good reason. This beautiful city, dramatically located between the Martial mountains, the bay and the Beagle Channel, is popular for its outstanding beauty, (2) _____, and for its acclaim as the city at the End of the World.

There are many things to do in Ushuaia. Trips to the city will most likely include big activities like taking the End of the World Train to Tierra del Fuego National Park, cruising through the Beagle Channel, or visiting the penguins on Martillo island. But when (3) _____ or when the (4) _____, there are a number of things to do in the picturesque city of Ushuaia to keep entertained.

While the casino remains a good option at night, visitors can go to a cosy bar or a (5) _____ or head back to the trusty San Martin Avenue, where visitors have got a number of great options: The Galway, an Irish pub, Bar Ideal, the oldest bar in the city, about 60 years old and El Náutico Bar, a good place to grab a hearty dinner. And if tourists want to learn tango at the End of the World, they can go to Milonga del Fin del Mundo, where they will get unique tango lessons.
