

Unit Test 1

Track 1

Man: How often do people brush their teeth?

Woman: Very few people never brush their teeth but statistics can still improve. Seven million British people only brush their teeth sometimes, every few days. This is not often enough.

Man: How often do you recommend I brush my teeth?

Woman: Three times a day is the best. But you can brush them twice a day... that will keep them healthy.

Man: What else can I do?

Woman: Don't drink soft drinks. Always brush your teeth after drinking sugar. If you can't do that, at least drink some water to help clean them.

Track 3

Perfect models walk in the bright lights. Their clothes move in strange combinations of materials and bold colours. The world of high fashion might not seem to have much in common with the clothes that you and I wear. These models might be wearing the thinnest skirts, the tallest hats, the heaviest shoes, the longest coats or the strangest... whatever! You would never walk down the street wearing that stuff. But fashion shows today will influence the colours and sizes of the clothes that we'll buy tomorrow. Really long winter coats mean they'll make your coat a little bit longer next year. Lots of bright animal patterns means they'll add some patterns to your next shirt. The clothing industry is one of the largest in the world. So, these fashion shows can even have a big impact on the economy.

Unit Test 4

Unit Test 7

Track 7

Interviewer: Dr Patterson, please continue with these very interesting facts about the year 2030.

Dr Patterson: 'Well, most people will prepare their meals at home using 3-D food printers. Driverless cars will be a reality. You will programme a destination and the car will drive you there automatically. People will take trips to space, as tourists. It will be very expensive for just a short trip.

Interviewer: That's very interesting!

Dr Patterson: Yes! In other fields, nanobots –very small robots–will be a big part of medicine, flying into a person's body to diagnose and fix problems. The world population will actually start shrinking: more than 50% of people will leave in countries with falling birth rates as people choose to have fewer children. Scientists will bring back extinct animals. No, not dinosaurs yet. They will start with the passenger pigeon and woolly mammoths.

Interviewer: Wow!

Dr Patterson: And finally, wearable technology, like glasses and watches will lead companies to start researching implants that can enhance human abilities, such as upgraded eyes or ears.

Interviewer: Well, we can't wait to see all that! Dr Patterson, we were very glad to have you here. Thank you so much for your time!

Dr Patterson: Oh, it's all my pleasure!

1. She has got an intense intimacy that makes her unique in the industry. This time, her amazing voice takes us to new emotional spaces, as she tries to step back and get some perspective on her life.

3. The writers and director of this theatrical play take us on a mind adventure to show us the sadness of growing up and leaving the past behind.
4. I had an amazing time exploring the beautiful hand-animated environments of this classic style 2-D platformer. Watch as your actions slowly bring the dying forest back to life.
5. We went to the cinema to see a great comedy! It was a lot of fun! We laughed out loud!
6. I had the basic butter chicken but they served free bread with a wide variety of sauces before the main dish. It was great!

Mid-term Test

Track 9

There are some laws to keep us safe from danger and other laws to help people, but some countries have also got laws that can be surprising for foreign visitors. Here are some surprising laws from some modern countries:

- In Canada, you cannot use too many coins to pay for something. A shop owner can refuse service if you want to buy a 50-dollar book with all coins.
- If someone dies in the Houses of Parliament in England, that person automatically gets a state funeral, even if he or she is just a tourist.
- It is illegal to wrestle bears in Alabama, in the USA. Apparently, this used to be a problem.
- It is illegal to kiss in public in the United Arab Emirates. Breaking this law can mean time in prison.
- In the state of Andhra Pradesh in India, students who cheat on exams can spend time in prison—up to 10 years!

Final Test Track 10

Vicky: Today on Stream Talk, Sam and I discuss the biggest films of the year and tell you which ones you should see!

Sam: That's right Vicky, we have got a lot to get through, so let's get started! The first one is a comic book film. In Avengers: Age of Ultron, all of your favourites from the cast of Avengers are back to deal with a new enemy. The plot gets pretty complicated, but there is plenty of exciting action for fans.

Vicky: Next up is the latest from Pixar Animation Studios, Inside Out. It is amazing how the artists of this film represent all the crazy, abstract parts of our brains with amusement parks, a control centre and many other locations. I have to say, when I saw it, I really laughed a lot at the jokes!

Sam: Me too!!! And finally, let's talk about the biggest film of the year, Star Wars: The Force Awakens. Director J.J. Abrams and the writers do a great job including elements of the original film from 1977, but with some surprises. This is another film with a big cast, but we really care about all of the new characters. There you go, three big films we can recommend!
